U.S. AIR AND SEA FORCES ORDERED TAKE STAND AGAINST RED INVADERS

FIGHTING FIERCE NORTHEAST OF SEOUL

Koreans Hear Of U.S. Aid, Hurl Reds Back 10 Miles

TOKYO, June 28—(Wednesday)—Wildly enthusiastic South Korean troops, stirred by an electrifying pledge of American air and sea support, early today hurled back invading Communist North Korean forces 10 to 20 miles from the gates of Seoul.

Even before President Truman's world-stirring announcement of American military support, the South Korean defenders were bolstered by a Seoul radio announcement that American aid would be forthcoming.

They smashed back at the invading Communists as confused reports indicated fierce fighting was going on at or beyond the Uijongbu area, 17 miles northeast of the capital.

Seoul radio announced the city of Uijongbu was recaptured from the Reds.

In Tokyo, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters seethed with activity as the five-starred general carried out the President's directive to throw America's air and sea might into the Korean struggle.

THE HEADQUARTERS offices blazed with lights throughout the night and early morning hours before dawn Wednesday. Top officers hurried to conferences where they received the orders putting the Airforce and Seventh Fleet into action against the Russian-trained North Korean forces.

American aid came as the Communist invaders were reported to have attempted a pinners movement against Seoul by landing 1,000 troops near Pusan on the southeast coast. A regiment of South Korean troops was reported moving to meet the invaders.

Y. H. Lee, International News Service correspondent in Seoul, telephoned Tokyo that 30,000 South Korean troops were defending the northeast approaches to the capital.

A high South Korean public information officer described the situation in Seoul as "most dangerous" notwithstanding the counterattack which hurled the Communists from Seoul's outskirts.

Lee reported the serious situation at the capital was reflected in the moving of the South Korean army general headquarters to the Shihung area 12 miles south of the capital and withdrawal of troops from within the city proper.

A Chinese News Agency dispatch from Pyongyang, capital of North Korea, said a seven-man North Korean military committee had been established to rule all of Korea.

The dispatch received in Hong Kong said the North Korean People's Council announced that the committee's orders and directives must be obeyed absolutely by the entire people, government institutions, political parties and military organs.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT added that the committee would "swiftly mobilize" the people throughout the country for the "annihilation" of South Korean President Syngman Rhee's "brigands" who were accused of unleashing the civil war.

Hardly 12 hours after MacArthur announced that he had been authorized to turn over ten Mustang fighters to embattled South Korea, the planes engaged Russian-made aircraft over Seoul. Three North Korean planes of the Russian IL-10 type were reported shot down.

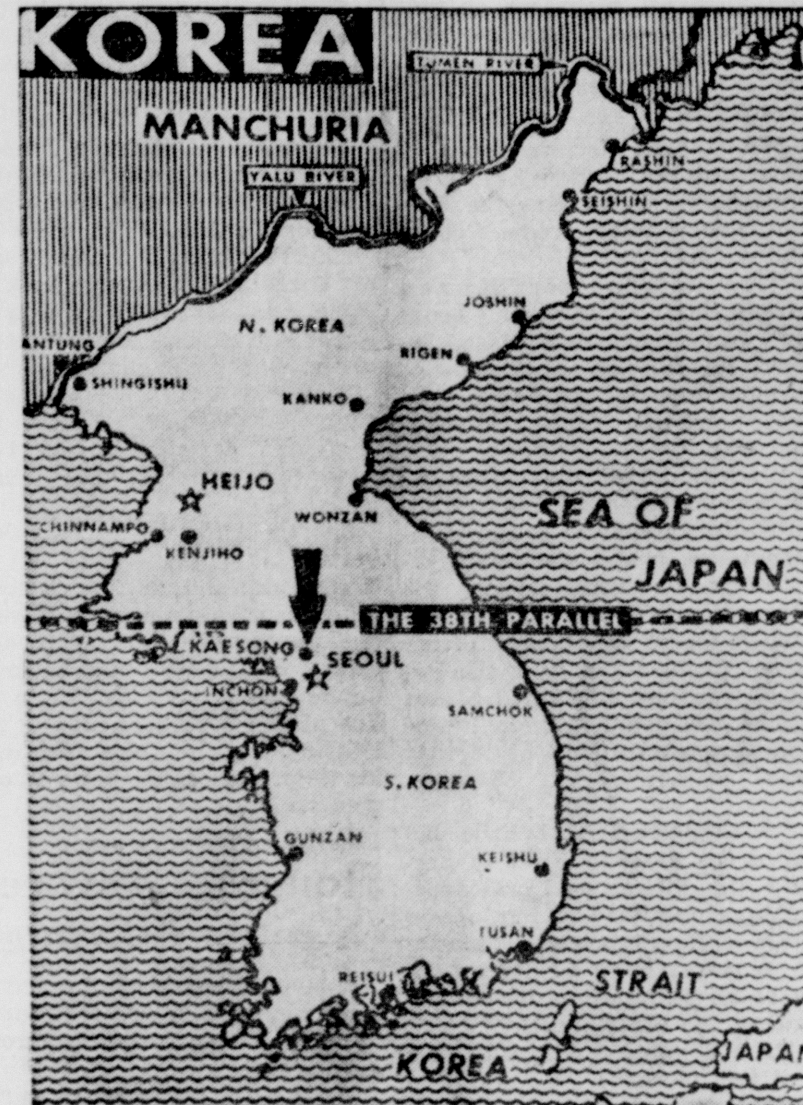

Telephoned reports to Tokyo from the South Korean government and other sources stated that South Korean ground forces rallied as their capital appeared doomed. The government said the Soviet-trained invaders from the north were driven back.

Xenia Election Dispute Eyed

COLUMBUS, June 27 — Secretary of State Charles F. Sweeney today impounded the May 2 primary election ballots in Zenith Township, Greene County.

Sweeney said he would go to Xenia and conduct a hearing into the charges brought by Frank A. Wolf who was defeated for Democrat committeeman by Raymond McCoy by a 35 to 34 count.

The defeated candidate charged the precinct judges with opening sealed ballots, changing the identity of voters, issuing ballots without names of candidates and failure to issue him a certificate as the duly elected candidate.

WITH TROOPS from Communist-dominated North Korea pushing across the 38th parallel (see map) in a sneak invasion of U. S. backed South Korea, Foreign Minister Ben Limb (lower right) compared the aggression with the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941. Limb joined South Korea's President Syngman Rhee (upper right) in pointing out "who is the aggressor in this tragic conflict," the initial battle of which reportedly saw four thousand troops die as Republic forces resisted the invasion. Arrow on the map points to the city of Kaesong, 50 miles northwest of Seoul, the capital, which Communist forces are attempting to occupy.

Senate-House Conferees OK Draft Extension

WASHINGTON, June 27—Senate-House conferees agreed today to extend the draft for one year and authorize President Truman to order National Guard and reserve personnel into service for not more than 21 months.

Under the agreed version of the draft extension bill, the present Selective Service Act is extended to July 9, 1951 "without limitation."

That strips from the bill the House provision which would have required Congress to declare an emergency before the President could order inductions.

In a statement, the conferees declared: "The conferees emphasized that this is not a congressional action directing immediate federal service for the reserve components."

"It is, however, a grant of authority to the President, should conditions so warrant, to order into federal service the reserve components."

Under the conferees' agreement, the President could not exceed the manpower strength authorized under the 1948 Selective Service Act of 2.5 million.

The House had authorized an extension until June 24, 1952, but had required that Congress "pull the trigger" on any inductions. The Senate bill would have extended the act until June 24, 1953. The Senate would have had Congress order inductions when in session.

CHICAGO, June 27 — The Geiger counter—once the expensive property of the atomic scientist—is in the warehouse for mail-order customers eager to win $10,000 at the first sign of a flashing red light on a $49.50 "super sniffer."

"The next thing I knew, my bedroom door burst open and a man leaped on me and began hitting me," she said.

"I screamed once, then he covered my mouth with his hand," she said. "It was too dark and happened too quick for me to recognize him."

Mrs. Groom's scream and the sound of scuffling aroused Mrs. Thurman I. Miller, wife of Circleville's mayor, who lives next door.

"OUR UPSTAIRS windows are only a few feet apart and both windows were open," Mrs. Miller said. "I could hear someone scuffling. I screamed for help."

"Shortly after I screamed I saw a man jump down from the bottom floor bathroom of her house and run away."

"I couldn't tell much because it was too dark," she said. "The man had broad shoulders."

At least, that's the trend, according to the 1950 census. The figures show 375,830 Vermonters own 405,000 cows. In 1940 there were 420,000 cows and 359,231 people.

Korea, Formosa To Be Given Full Yank Protection

Action Taken By President Asked By UN Security Council

WASHINGTON, June 27 — President Truman today ordered United States air and sea forces into action against the Communist invaders of South Korea and announced that America will defend Formosa against any Red attack.

The chief executive declared in a momentous statement issued at the White House shortly after noon:

"I have ordered United States air and sea forces to give the Korean government troops cover and support."

The President also announced that Philippine defenses will be strengthened immediately and that U. S. aid to French forces in Indo-China will be accelerated.

Defense Secretary Johnson told newsmen at the White House that the United States is acting at the request of the United Nations Security Council.

Johnson emphasized that the President's decision does not—at this time—involve use of American ground forces in Korea or mobilization in the United States.

THE DECISION to make Formosa a U. S. bastion represents an abrupt reversal of the policy previously followed.

Congressional comment indicated overwhelming bipartisan support of the President's action, which was announced after a series of high-level conferences with military chiefs and congressional leaders.

The President specifically directed the U. S. Seventh Fleet to take over defense of Formosa and to see that Chinese Nationalist forces there cease operations against Communists on the China mainland.

All Atlantic Pact nation ambassadors were summoned to the State Department and informed of the U. S. action, as were envoys from the Latin American nations signatory to the Rio Mutual Defense Pact.

Mr. Truman emphasized that U. S. forces have been called into action because the Korean invasion means that the Communist plan of aggression now means "armed invasion and war."

The President pointed out that occupation of Formosa by Communist forces would be a "direct threat" to Pacific security.

Sonar May Tell Ship's Location

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., June 27—Navy and Coast Guard vessels will use secret sonar devices today in an effort to locate more wreckage of a Northwest Airlines DC-4 that apparently plummeted into Lake Michigan in the nation's worst commercial air disaster.

Investigators expressed fears, however, that no remaining fragment of the 32-ton air-coach is large enough to reflect the underwater impulses and pinpoint the spot where Flight Number 2501—with 58 persons aboard—ended.

and to the U. S. forces in that area.

Mr. Truman added: "As a corollary of this action I am calling upon the Chinese government on Formosa to cease all air and sea operations against the mainland. The Seventh Fleet will see that this is done."

The President said he also has directed that U. S. forces in the Philippines be strengthened and that military assistance to the Philippine government be accelerated.

THE CHIEF executive declared that Formosa's future status must await restoration of security in the Pacific, a peace settlement with Japan, or consideration by the United Nations.

The President said the Communist attack on Korea "makes it plain beyond all doubt that Communism has passed beyond the use of subversion to conquer independent nations and will now use armed invasion and war."

Mr. Truman asserted in a formal statement that Communism "has defied the orders of the Security Council of the United Nations issued to preserve international peace and security."

The President said: "In these circumstances the occupation of Formosa by Communist forces would be a direct threat to the security of the Pacific area and to United States forces performing their lawful

Russia, U. S. Aides Meeting On UN Level

LAKE SUCCESS, June 27—Russia and the United States met for grave consultations on the international crisis at a private restaurant today along with all other members of the United Nations Security Council except Yugoslavia and China.

The luncheon was arranged under the auspices of Assistant UN Secretary-General Konstantin Zinchenko, wartime chief of the Moscow office of propaganda and censorship.

Ernest R. Gross attended for the United States. Jacob A. Malik appeared for Russia. Presumably, the meeting is a Russian initiative and constitutes the first "approach" to the West on the Cold War and crisis as provoked by Korea.

The fact that it was a Russian approach is confirmed in the lack of an invitation to Ales Bebel of Yugoslavia and Tingfu F. Tsiang of Nationalist China.

A U. S. spokesman declared President Truman ordered the American fleet and Airforce into action in response to the UN Security Council call to all governments on Sunday to help carry

Americans Offering To Form Foreign Legion In Korea

WASHINGTON, June 27 — The Korean embassy announced today that offers are pouring in from ex-GIs and other Americans who want to join South Korean forces in repelling Communist invaders.

The embassy said one such offer came from a Denver, Colo., war veteran who offered to renounce his American citizenship, if necessary, to pilot warplanes. The volunteer was described as a former Air Corps aerial gunner, 33, who went to navigation school and saw action in the European theatre of operations during World War II.

The embassy reported that another volunteer offer came from an ex-GI in Baltimore. He asked the embassy to OK organization of a foreign legion for Korean defense and said he and his "buddies" are ready to form the core.

An embassy spokesman said additional offers have come from former officers and enlisted men in New York City, Detroit, Sandston, Va., Washington, D. C., and Cincinnati. The embassy reported that students from Notre Dame and Stanford universities also are volunteering.

A former Airforce major from Sandston, Va., said he has a "select group of the world's most capable fighter pilots available for immediate duty in South Korea."

A former Army lieutenant colonel from Detroit said he served as a civilian adviser in Korea under the American government and added:

"I witnessed the Democratic elections in your country as sponsored by my government. As an American who loves your people, I am with you in this crucial hour."

"Any service I may render to you and yours in this hour is available for the asking." The Cincinnati volunteer described himself as a "soldier trained at the U. S. Military Academy" and World War II veteran. He offered to train troops in Korea and promised that he would make "front line combat units" of recruits in only six weeks.

The embassy refused to disclose the names of all except one volunteer for publication. A spokesman identified this man as Paul Timothy Chang, a Chinese citizen who has spent most of his adult life in the U. S. and is now studying at Notre Dame university. Chang declared:

"Korean situation heart-breaking. Please accept my services. I am available anytime, anywhere. Please reply."

Korean spokesmen said the embassy "appreciates the offers as a sincere desire on the part of the American people to help keep our bastion of democracy alive" but that it cannot accept them.

They explained that the volunteers would require State Department clearance and that "probably would involve too much red tape and there isn't time."

Solons In Full Accord With Truman's Action

WASHINGTON, June 27—Sen. Knowland, (R) Calif., called on Americans of both political parties today to back up President Truman's stance to support in battle South Korea and defend Formosa.

In hailing the President's announcement, Knowland declared:

"I believe the President of the United States should have the united support of all Americans on this necessary policy enunciated for the Far East."

"It is obvious if the free world is to be defended against aggressive Communism such a line must be drawn in the Far East."

Sen. Bridges, (R) N. H., said that most of those in the White House meeting with the President were in wholehearted accord with his decision.

Bridges said he thought the President's order for U. S. air

No Mobilization Expected Here 'At Moment'

WASHINGTON, June 27—Defense Secretary Johnson said today that U. S. armed support of South Korea will not entail mobilization "at home, at the moment."

Johnson told newsmen, as he left the vital morning White House conference after which the U. S. step was announced, that this government is "acting in behalf of the United Nations" and on the request of that body's Security Council.

The defense secretary emphasized that the military reinforcement of the South Korean forces opposing Communist invasion does not involve the use of American soldiers.

President Truman's announcement said American air and naval forces had been ordered to help repel the North Korean armies.

Johnson said:

"We haven't committed any land forces. We are doing what the United Nations asked us to do yesterday."

and sea forces to give South Korean troops cover and support "covers everything."

ONE MEMBER attending the conference said that as far as he was concerned the order meant that American planes could, if necessary, bomb North Korean forces.

Most members of Congress at White House flatly refused to comment on the President's announcement other than to say that their views were covered by the President's statement.

Sen. Smith, (R) N. J., said: "I'm for the whole statement."

Sen. Tydings, (D) Md., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told reporters the statement "speaks for itself."

Bridges said that "it is our job to protect" the Philippines and those areas covered by Mr. Truman's orders.

He said:

"It is exactly the action I have been urging."

Chairman Connally, (D) Tex., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, firmly refused to discuss the White House session.

Bridges said the congressional members were briefed by the President, Secretary of State Acheson and Defense Secretary Johnson.

Acheson told newsmen after the conference that "the statement speaks for itself if anything ever did."

Sen. Millikin, (R) Colo., said: "I am in favor of establishing a line in the Pacific just as we did in Europe beyond which we resist Communist aggression."

"HAVING ESTABLISHED this line, those things necessary to preserve its integrity must be done. It is regrettable this line was not established before war commenced in Korea."

Rep. Eaton, (R) N. J., former chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said:

CCC GETS FUND BOOST

Federal Agency Readies New Farm Price Program

WASHINGTON, June 27—President Truman gave Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan the green light today to announce new farm price support programs.

Mr. Truman is expected momentarily to sign a bill authorizing $2 billion additional in government lending authority to bolster prices.

A source close to the board of directors of the Commodity Credit Corporation, which runs the government's price support programs, said the board will meet today to approve programs still pending.

A measure to boost the CCC's borrowing power, to support farm prices, from $4.75 billion to $6.75 billion squeaked through Congress late yesterday. Vice-President Barkley voted to break a tie vote for Senate passage of the bill.

Announcements are expected immediately on the dollars-and-cents levels at which the government will commit itself to support farm prices of so-called basic crops—corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts and tobacco—during this year.

THE FARM LAW directs the Agriculture Department specifically to support those crops at 90 percent of parity, a formula designed to give farmers a fair price for their crops.

The department also will announce its decision on whether to support feed grains other than corn, including oats, barley, rye and grain sorghums. Honey and mohair must be supported at levels between 60 and 90 percent of parity and announcements on these are expected along with the rest.

Announcement of dollar-and-cent support levels are several months behind time with major crops already well along into the planting season.

Reports Claim Yanks To Aid South Koreans

LONDON, June 27—Reuters reported today a Seoul broadcast to the effect that American troops and airmen will be sent tomorrow to South Korea to direct aid for South Korean forces fighting Communist invaders.

The news agency first quoted the broadcast as saying that the Americans are being sent to "give direct aid."

Later, this was corrected to report that the Americans will simply give advice and directions concerning U. S. assistance in the form of planes and weapons.

The broadcast was said to have been made by Colonel Kim Hyum Soo, South Korea's chief public relations officer. He was quoted as saying that the American forces will be sent tomorrow.

The Reuter dispatch said that observers in Seoul believe the broadcast was made to quiet fears of the capital city's populace at a time when headquarters of the South Korean army was reported being withdrawn.

Meanwhile, persistent rumors circulated in Tokyo that Chinese Nationalists are offering fighter planes and light bombers with pilots to help South Korea.

Several American pilots from Taipei, capital of Formosa island, the Chinese Nationalist stronghold, arrived in Tokyo this morning and their presence apparently stimulated the rumors.

The American pilots are believed to be a nucleus of an international air brigade. The pilots are returning to Taipei tomorrow aboard a cargo plane of China Air Transport, the line operated by Gen. Claire Chennault, famed "Flying Tiger" leader.

Wooden Leg Betrays Beggar

CINCINNATI, June 27—Mrs. Lola Glanston, 58-year-old professional beggar, had some trouble with her wooden leg.

Of course the leg wasn't aching, but police found that Mrs. Glanston was using the artificial limb to hide $66 and a key to a safety deposit box.

Municipal Judge Daniel C. Handley ordered her out of Cincinnati. If she desired, she might take up residence in Colorado or Canada where she owns property.

The word "dollar" is taken from the German "thaler," abbreviation of Joachimsthaler, a coin first minted in 1518 in the valley of St. Joachim in Bohemia.

Mr. Truman said:

"In Korea the government forces, which were armed to prevent border raids and to preserve internal security, were attacked by invading forces from North Korea.

"The Security Council of the United Nations called upon the invading troops to cease hostilities and to withdraw to the 38th Parallel.

"This they have not done, but on the contrary have pressed the attack.

"The Security Council called upon all members of the United Nations to render every assistance in the execution of this resolution.

"In these circumstances I have ordered United States air and sea forces to give the Korean government troops, cover and support.

"The attack upon Korea makes it plain beyond all doubt that Communism has passed beyond the use of subversion to conquer independent nations and will now use armed invasion and war.

"It has defied the orders of the Security Council of the United Nations issued to preserve international peace and security.

that she had been frightened recently when a man prowled around her home. She said she had installed door chains to her upstairs room.

"He hit the door like a football player," she said. "It crashed in and he was hitting me before I could reach for the shotgun in the corner."

Mrs. Groom, a rather large woman, said:

"I fought him with everything I had. I must have scratched him up some, although I can't exactly remember whether I did."

"Mrs. Miller saved me when she screamed," she added.

THE ATTACKER, apparently frightened by the screams, ran down the stairway, leaving smears of blood from his hands on the railing. Reaching the ground floor, the assailant apparently headed directly for the bathroom, lifted the window which had automatically closed and leaped to the ground.

The bathroom window is approximately three feet from the west side of the Miller home and about six feet high. As the man jumped down he left another bloody hand smear on the Miller house.

The intruder apparently entered through the bathroom, using the confined space between the houses for leverage. The bathroom window was pushed straight back, tearing out the casings.

Mrs. Miller said that when the man jumped down he ran back through Mrs. Groom's rear yard. He apparently hurdled a fence at the rear.

CHIEF MCCRADY agreed with the victim that the man apparently knew his way around the house.

Meanwhile, neighbors reported that they had seen a man lurking in an alleyway near the home about 15 minutes before the attack occurred.

The neighbors said they saw a man walking down the alley slightly hunched over, carrying his hands clenched at his sides. He was dressed, they said, in a striped shirt.

Mrs. Groom was treated in the hospital for a fractured nose and severe hemorrhages of both eyes. She is reported in good condition.

"A return to the rule of force in international affairs would have far-reaching effects.

"The United States will continue to uphold the rule of law. I have instructed Ambassador Austin, as the representative of the United States to the Security Council, to report these steps to the council."

Mr. Truman, after a series of separate conferences, met shortly before noon with chiefs of the armed services and key congressional leaders.

OBSERVERS believed that the President was presenting to his principal advisers the course of action on which he has decided.

Secretary of Defense Johnson arrived for his second conference of the morning and would not comment.

The President was joined also by Secretary of Army Frank Pace and Secretary of Navy Francis Matthews and Secretary of the Air Force Finletter.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff, headed by Gen. Omar Bradley, the chairman, arrived through the southwest gate of the White House.

Shortly before the President began his session with all of these. Adm. Sidney Souers, special adviser on global intelligence, and James Lay, executive secretary of the National Security Council, left the President's office after a long session with the President giving him last minute information on developments.

Cool Air Shoves Mercury Down From High Of 95

Cool northwest winds blew comfortable temperatures and dry weather back into Ohio Tuesday.

And it was about time, too. The mercury edged up to 95 in Circleville Monday, making the old roundtown one of the hottest spots in the state.

Two days of sunshine and moderate highs faced the state Tuesday as the humidity promised to remain in the comfortable zone in Central Ohio. Humidity was expected to average around 60 grains of water vapor per pound of dry air, compared with Monday's 120 to 130 grains.

"Highs Tuesday will vary from 75 in the north to 80 degrees in the south," the forecaster said. "Lows Tuesday night will range from 50 to 60."

Wednesday will continue fair and sunny, he added.

Two persons were injured when large trees were knocked down by a heavy windstorm in Lancaster Monday. To and a half inches of rain fell in the area. Hailstones shattered windows in many homes.

Several persons were shocked and several thousand dollars damage was caused by a bolt of lightning which struck a doctor's house in New Lexington Monday night.

SCATTERED thunderstorms hit parts of the state still cleaning up after weekend storms. Some 70 persons in Alliance were ordered to appear before health officials for typhoid fever shots following weekend storms that flooded their block.

Damage to seven Stark County

bridges caused by Saturday cloudburst in the Canton area was estimated at more than $100,000.

A similar $100,000 estimate of damages resulting from Saturday's rains was reported by Columbiana County officials. More than ten bridges and culverts were washed away in the northwestern part of the county.

Twenty-nine persons were reported dead and three others missing during flash floods which spread over six West Virginia counties.

Property damage caused by the floods, which burst upon north central West Virginia Saturday night, was estimated in the millions. Between 100 and 200 homes were destroyed in the six counties.

The weather bureau's five-day forecast follows:

"Temperatures will average slightly below normal for the period. Moderate temperatures Wednesday, a little warmer Thursday, then little variation. Scattered showers Thursday night and again about Saturday totaling about one-third to one-half inch."

Federal Agency Readies New Farm Price Program

WASHINGTON, June 27—President Truman gave Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan the green light today to announce new farm price support programs.

Mr. Truman is expected momentarily to sign a bill authorizing $2 billion additional in government lending authority to bolster prices.

A source close to the board of directors of the Commodity Credit Corporation, which runs the government's price support programs, said the board will meet today to approve programs still pending.

THE FARM LAW directs the Agriculture Department specifically to support those crops at 90 percent of parity, a formula designed to give farmers a fair price for their crops.

The department also will announce its decision on whether to support feed grains other than corn, including oats, barley, rye and grain sorghums. Honey and mohair must be supported at levels between 60 and 90 percent of parity and announcements on these are expected along with the rest.

Announcement of dollar-and-cent support levels are several months behind time with major crops already well along into the planting season.

super sniffer" which noses out radioactive ore deposits wherever radiation reaches surface ground.

The set looks like a small portable radio and weighs less than two pounds—including a "radio-ur. test sample" to show prospectors what radioactivity looks and sounds like on the counter.

To make it official, the catalogue quotes a U. S. Atomic Energy Commission directive authorizing a $10,000 bonus "for discovery of a new deposit and the production therefrom of the first 20 short tons of uranium ore. . . assaying 20 percent or more U-308. . . paid on delivery."

The bonus does not apply to the more common types of uranium ores found in Colorado and Utah.

Beginning today, the House will debate for two days on the measure approved by the tax-writing ways and means committee. This legislation includes the corporation tax boost as one means of offsetting revenue losses that would result from excise tax cuts.

Before final action Thursday, the House will vote on a GOP motion to divorce the excise tax cuts from the remainder of the revenue bill.

If the motion is approved, separate votes will then be taken on proposed excise slashes and other changes approved by the Democratic majority on the ways and means committee.

Republicans contend that there should be no attempt to recover any of the proposed excise cuts by increasing other levies.

Cool Air Shoves Mercury Down From High Of 95

Cool northwest winds blew comfortable temperatures and dry weather back into Ohio Tuesday.

And it was about time, too. The mercury edged up to 95 in Circleville Monday, making the old roundtown one of the hottest spots in the state.

Two days of sunshine and moderate highs faced the state Tuesday as the humidity promised to remain in the comfortable zone in Central Ohio. Humidity was expected to average around 60 grains of water vapor per pound of dry air, compared with Monday's 120 to 130 grains.

"Highs Tuesday will vary from 75 in the north to 80 degrees in the south," the forecaster said. "Lows Tuesday night will range from 50 to 60."

Wednesday will continue fair and sunny, he added.

Two persons were injured when large trees were knocked down by a heavy windstorm in Lancaster Monday. To and a half inches of rain fell in the area. Hailstones shattered windows in many homes.

Several persons were shocked and several thousand dollars damage was caused by a bolt of lightning which struck a doctor's house in New Lexington Monday night.

SCATTERED thunderstorms hit parts of the state still cleaning up after weekend storms. Some 70 persons in Alliance were ordered to appear before health officials for typhoid fever shots following weekend storms that flooded their block.

Damage to seven Stark County

bridges caused by Saturday cloudburst in the Canton area was estimated at more than $100,000.

A similar $100,000 estimate of damages resulting from Saturday's rains was reported by Columbiana County officials. More than ten bridges and culverts were washed away in the northwestern part of the county.

Twenty-nine persons were reported dead and three others missing during flash floods which spread over six West Virginia counties.

Property damage caused by the floods, which burst upon a north central West Virginia Saturday night, was estimated in the millions. Between 100 and 200 homes were destroyed in the six counties.

The weather bureau's five-day forecast follows: "Temperatures will average slightly below normal for the period. Moderate temperatures Wednesday, a little warmer Thursday, then little variation. Scattered showers Thursday night and again about Saturday totaling about one-third to one-half inch."

Ex-Potentates In Europe Having Share Of Trouble

NEW YORK, June 27—Some guys just never know when they're well off and that goes double for Leopold of the Belgians.

Ever since the end of the war, when his people and parliament asked him to scram, he's been living the life of Count de Riley in Switzerland and feeling no pain.

He has less hair than he had in the old days, but he has more paunch. He expects to be back in Belgium around July 12 to resume his duties as head man.

Some observers feel that Leopold is pressing his luck by returning. Some 50 percent of his people still take a dim view of his surrender of the Belgian army to the Germans 18 days after the Nazis invaded the Lowlands in World War II.

However, unlike most kings who got bounced during or after the late war, Leopold seems likely to get a second shot at the job. When he returns to Brussels, Leopold will leave the Swiss local of the union of ex-potentates in the hands of Former King Michael of Romania, whose Alpine stay is apt to be protracted, from the present look of things in the Balkans.

Michael and his princess, Anne, who occupy a bungalow in Lausanne, are expecting a second baby and when last heard from were planning to visit her relatives in Denmark, an honorable and inexpensive way for a young couple to scrounge a vacation.

MICHAEL's old man, King Carol, and Mme. Lupescu are on the Portuguese Riviera once more, still looking wistfully across the Atlantic at the United States.

Carol had two shots at kinging it in Romania and — scant consolation for Leopold—got chased across the border both times.

The Portuguese local of the ex-potentates union still includes Former King Umberto of Italy. But his wife, Former Queen Mari Jose (and own sister to Leopold) is a member of the Swiss chapter.

However Umberto has company. Don Juan, pretender to the Spanish throne, is a member of the Portuguese local in good standing, as is the Count de Paris, pretender to the throne of France.

But, the count may be moving to France any day now. The French government has finally rescinded the ukase forbidding the count to step foot on French soil. The realistic French have at last decided that the count and the monarchists no longer constitute a threat to internal safety.

Peter, the erstwhile king of Yugoslavia, commutes between Europe and New York. So does Archduke Otto, who has grown middle-aged pretending to the throne of a non-existent Austro-Hungarian empire.

Don Jaime, brother of Don Juan, who recently popped up as a second pretender to the throne of Spain, is doing his pretending on the French Riviera. Former Queen Elena of Italy, mother of Umberto, also lives on the French Mediterranean coast.

And if you care about good old ex-king Zog and his half-American queen—Geraldine, you will be happy to know that he is twiddling his racquets in Egypt. He was Albania, '40, but he is not apt to go home for class reunion in the foreseeable future.

Also, the king of Siam left Switzerland just long enough to go home, get crowned and married. Now he and his bride are back in Switzerland, just as Leopold is packing his bags and baggage for departure. If Leopold is sensible, he'll keep his Swiss hotel reservations just in case.

More Training Said Needed

CLEVELAND, June 27—Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, believes that the federal government must finance the training of more doctors and nurses before adopting any form of national health insurance.

O'Connor told delegates to the American Physical Therapy Association's annual conference here last night that legislating a form of nationalized medicine before adequate personnel is available would be putting the "cart before the horse."

"We are not training enough people," O'Connor said. "The financial problems of our medical schools increase with every day that passes."

Millionaire Bookie's Bookie Heads For Prison

NEW YORK, June 27—Frank Erickson, whose 30-year winning streak against the law finally ran out, will exchange his business suit today for prison garb on bleak Rikers Island.

The millionaire book maker spent the night in a city prison cell after he was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and fined $30,000 on a plea of guilty to 60 counts of bookmaking and conspiracy.

The 54-year-old bookmaker who had never before spent a day in jail will be eligible for release in 16 months.

This morning he was taken from the city prison to the East River in a barred van and transferred to a boat for the trip to "the island."

With the Erickson case marked closed, District Attorney Frank S. Hogan gave his full efforts to preparing the prosecution of other top New York bookmakers.

Hogan disclosed he is applying the "Erickson technique" in presenting evidence to the grand jury which had issued the criminal information against the "bookmaker's bookmaker."

Concerted Drive Is Started For Farm Research

WASHINGTON, June 27 — The Agriculture Department has launched a concerted drive to harness research for the mutual benefit of the farmer and the man on the street.

The department met with the chairmen of 24 advisory committees appointed under the Research and Marketing Act to help guide the government in its farm research. The committees represent the voices of all segments of the farming industry.

The meetings, headed by Secretary Brannan, developed general policy recommendations for the department to follow "in the interest of a well-balanced program to serve the public good."

The committee chairmen asked Brannan to keep the various advisory committees informed as fully as possible about federal, state or industrial research as a means of obtaining utmost cooperation.

They also asked that extension, education and service work be expanded to bring the results of research down to practical production and distribution problems.

Joseph Gunderman of St. Marys, deputy grand worthy president, will go on trial Oct. 23 for publicizing a lottery. He also will be tried Oct. 30 on a charge of promoting a lottery. On Nov. 13 Gunderman will be tried for a charge of blackmail.

Consideration Came Too Late

NEW YORK, June 27—Roland diPaola, 25, was proud of his job as a $75 a week routeman for a bakery concern.

But his wife, Florence, 21, whom he married two years ago, detested it because he had to leave their Brooklyn apartment at 6 a. m. and not return until 6 p. m. and then he was too tired to take her out.

Yesterday, seeing the mounting hysteria in his wife's face at the breakfast table, he resolved to quit his job.

Without telling her, he handed in his resignation. When he returned home, he found Mrs. diPaola dead in the gas-filled kitchen of their home.

When riding in an automobile, at 40 miles an hour, brakes should be applied 80 to 100 feet from the stopping point.

Concerted Drive Is Started For Farm Research

WASHINGTON, June 27—The Agriculture Department has launched a concerted drive to harness research for the mutual benefit of the farmer and the man on the street.

The department met with the chairmen of 24 advisory committees appointed under the Research and Marketing Act to help guide the government in its farm research. The committees represent the voices of all segments of the farming industry.

The meetings, headed by Secretary Brannan, developed general policy recommendations for the department to follow "in the interest of a well-balanced program to serve the public good."

The committee chairmen asked Brannan to keep the various advisory committees informed as fully as possible about federal, state or industrial research as a means of obtaining utmost cooperation.

They also asked that extension, education and service work be expanded to bring the results of research down to practical production and distribution problems.

Eagles Lodge Trials Booked For September

OTTAWA, June 27—The trials of five officers of the national Eagles lodge will begin Sept. 20 in Putnam County common pleas court.

The quintet pleaded not guilty yesterday when arraigned on eight charges stemming from a fight between the Ottawa aerie and the national organization.

Barnett H. Goldstein of Portland, Ore., Eagles lodge attorney, and George A. Monahan, Auglaize County prosecuting attorney serving as counsel for the Eagles, are to be tried Sept. 20 for champerty (stirring up a law suit).

Trials for Mathew L. Brown, national administrative director of the Eagles, and James Kellner, state secretary, both of Springfield, will begin Sept. 25. On Oct. 9 and Oct. 16 they will be tried on separate counts of publicizing a lottery.

Joseph Gunderman of St. Marys, deputy grand worthy president, will go on trial Oct. 23 for publicizing a lottery. He also will be tried Oct. 30 on a charge of promoting a lottery. On Nov. 13 Gunderman will be tried for a charge of blackmail.

A charge against Gunderman for doing business as a corporation not licensed in Ohio was dismissed yesterday.

Consideration Came Too Late

NEW YORK, June 27—Roland diPaola, 25, was proud of his job as a $75 a week routeman for a bakery concern.

But his wife, Florence, 21, whom he married two years ago, detested it because he had to leave their Brooklyn apartment at 6 a. m. and not return until 6 p. m. and then he was too tired to take her out.

Yesterday, seeing the mounting hysteria in his wife's face at the breakfast table, he resolved to quit his job.

Without telling her, he handed in his resignation. When he returned home, he found Mrs. diPaola dead in the gas-filled kitchen of their home.

When riding in an automobile, at 40 miles an hour, brakes should be applied 80 to 100 feet from the stopping point.

NOT SO GOOD AS SOUNDS

"I DON'T believe in the appointive system of choosing public officials. I believe they should be elected." Thus Ray T. Miller, chairman of the Cleveland Democratic executive committee, declared his opposition to a new county charter which would make appointive such offices as county treasurer, county auditor, county clerk, sheriff and coroner. These officers would be appointed by a county administrator, operating under an elected commission of nine.

Appointing such officials as the foregoing and making them responsible to a single superior is likely to improve public service. It would also lessen the chance of misfits with popular names being elected, or of a party landslide sweeping in unknown nonentities.

Politicians always prefer the elective system, because it keeps control in their hands. It sounds as if it left control in the hands of the voters, but it does not work out that way at all. Few voters can remember the names of candidates for long lists of offices. They have to go along with the party, or pick some name with a pleasing sound. Either way is apt to be bad.

The objection is not logical. Present day elective officials appoint their clerks and deputies. By the Miller system these should be elective. What if it did make the ballot so long as to stretch from Cleveland to Chicago?

Some of these jobs, also, require men of very specific training. The treasurer, for instance, and the auditor, need to have special preparation for such offices. The coroner is another. Appointment by a responsible and competent county administrator, himself elected, is much more likely to get the right men for such places.

FIVE TEXASES

SHALL proud Texas be divided into five states? When admitted into the Union, she reserved the right. Now Texas oil men are enraged by the Supreme Court ruling that title to the submerged coastal oil lands belongs to the federal government and not to the separate states. The time has come for Texas to resort to her historic right of self-division, says Chairman Ernest O. Thompson of the Texas Railroad Commission. That would give the Texas country 10 senators instead of two, enough perhaps to swing a congressional resolution annulling the Supreme Court decision.

This idea has been proposed many times. It always fails because of two objections which no doubt will prove fatal now. It would deprive Texas of the honor of being by far the largest state. Secondly, all Texas and not a particular county feels itself the possessor of the glories of the Alamo.

Senate Probers to Reveal Race Wire News Subscribers Making Names Public May Set Off Series of Raids

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Local law enforcement officials may find themselves slightly on the spot next week. Senate gambling investigators are scheduled to publish a 2,000-name list of persons who regularly subscribe to racing news wires.

The list won't disclose which wire users are bookies but it will provide the first complete picture of the racing wire set-up. And it's no secret that sports news flashed over the wires eventually does reach bookies—sometimes by open telephone wires from a ticker wire terminal point.

By using the new list local cops will more than likely be able to pin-point bookie establishments in their areas—whether they want to or not.

In the past, they could always disclaim knowledge of the gambling parlors even though they knew they were operating. But now the information will be spread upon the public record.

It could set off a chain reaction of arrests and raids across the country. Militant citizens groups also may be able to use the "who's who" in the racing wire business to force action by reluctant authorities.

These Days

General Douglas MacArthur, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, General Omar Bradley and John Foster Dulles, in their conferences in Tokyo, had to face this paradox:

Can the United States continue to occupy Japan indefinitely while assuming that Japan is a sovereign nation?

Further, while Japan is presumably governed by the Far Eastern Commission of 13 nations, is it not a fact that MacArthur functions as an American pro-consul? The ambiguity of his position has aided MacArthur so that he has not been faced by the confusion that General Lucius Clay encountered in Germany.

The effort to regularize American relations with Japan would not have been difficult had a peace conference been held and had a peace treaty been arranged. Although almost five years have passed since V-J Day, no peace conference has been held and no peace treaty has been signed. Nor does it appear practical to hold such a conference at this time, for it is obvious from what has happened at other international conferences and at the United Nations that the United States and Soviet Russia would immediately lock horns and the meeting would end in a stalemate, such as now blocks the United Nations.

The alternative seems to be for the United States and Japan to reach some agreement of their own, perhaps with an understanding with Great Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand. Soviet China, in such a situation, would support Russia. The positions of India and Pakistan cannot be taken for granted.

Were it just a matter of Japan, an arrangement could be made without too much peril. But involved are whatever decisions are reached regarding the Philippines, our relations with Nationalist and Soviet China, and the general plans to contain the Communist advance in Asia within its present boundaries. In a word, the complications are the same as in Europe, with Russia opposing what the United States proposed and vice versa. Thus far, MacArthur has managed to sidestep these complications by a personal authority which no one else possesses.

The Philippines offer a singularly complicated problem. The United States has guaranteed the sovereignty of that country to which this country granted independence by act of Congress. Again, we face a complex problem which has never been decided by international judgment:

That is, when a nation is seized by a revolutionary party which is part of a conquering imperialistic force, is it an indigenous act of revolution in a sovereign state or is it a phase of an imperialist movement?

The admission of Soviet China into the United Nations may set the standards for the world. It is establishable that since 1924, Russia has been operating in China both as a revolutionary force through Chinese Communists and as an imperialist power. But the case of the Philippines would be different, for that country had been a territorial part of the United States until by act of Congress the Philippines were given their independence under an American guarantee of sovereignty.

The United States cannot split hairs over the question as to whether the Huks are poverty-stricken revolutionaries fighting corruption or whether they are part of the Russian apparatus for world conquest.

Children's Reducing Program

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

RELATIVELY little attention has been paid to the problem of the overweight child. Parents are inclined to believe either that nothing can be done about it or that Nature itself will correct the situation as the child grows older. This is true only in about one-third of the cases; others must rely on treatment if they are to lose their handicapping fat.

Like adults, children frequently overeat because of emotional factors. Thus, to be successful, any reducing program for the child must include an attempt to stabilize his emotional life. Moreover, since the first step in any reducing program is to gain the cooperation of the patient, both the child and his parents must be made to see the rewards that come from losing weight.

Long Period

Weight reduction in a child should be carried out gradually over a long period of time so that the chemical processes in the body will not be upset and no disturbance of the normal growth will occur. A weight loss of more than one or two pounds a week is not desirable.

Furthermore, with children, the amount of food cannot be suddenly reduced, but must be done gradually. A suggested method is to obtain a full list of the child's foods for a one-week period. Then, about 250 calories can be cut from the diet every three to five days until the diet supplies just the number of calories or heat units necessary to bring about slow weight loss.

Certain foods, such as bacon, ham and pork, goose, duck, and sausage, may have to be eliminated from the diet for the time being. The amount of butter and cream must be cut down, sweets limited, and such starchy foods as potatoes, noodles and corn, as well as beans, kept out of the diet. Saccharine may be used for sweetening in place of sugar.

It is important, in children, to use vitamin concentrates to make sure that all of the necessary vitamins will be obtained daily.

Children require a daily intake of milk, but skim milk may be used in the place of whole milk.

After the child has lost the necessary amount of weight, it is necessary to continue with some dietary regulation so that the excess weight will not be regained.

Of course, reducing in children should be carried out under the directions of a physician.

Try, Stop Me

Frank Loesser, the composer of "Baby, It's Cold Outside," and "Slow Boat to China," tells the story of a rather remarkable reindeer who ambled into a saloon on Eighth Avenue and ordered a shot of Scotch. The bartender charged him two dollars, and remarked, "I don't believe I ever saw a reindeer drinking Scotch before." "And until you cut your price in half," answered the reindeer, "you never will again."

A biography of Chief Justice Simon P. Chase, who headed the Supreme Court in the crucial years from 1864 to 1872, reveals that he was as agile-tongued and irresistible in the drawing-room as he was on the bench. A few years after the Civil War ended, the Chief Justice was introduced to a flaming beauty from Alabama. "I must warn you," she told him archly, "that I am a rebel who has not been reconstructed." The gallant jurist promptly responded, "Madam, reconstruction in your case—even in the slightest degree—would be nothing short of sacrilege!"

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Brian Ives returns to Tamerlane, frontier town of the Old West. Colonel Carradine, once his benefactor, needs him. Ives is ordered to "get out" by those giant Cory Lund, but Marco Stole, an old acquaintance, intervenes. Warfare soon ensues. Carradine's stubborn, futile resistance to progress, to the "nester" farmers' invasion of the land, of the Colonel's beautiful unhappy daughter, Tana. On the trail, Ives discovers Carradine, a desperado, crunched in brush, cruelly suffering from snake bite. The doctor treats him and goes on his way. During the journey he is embarrassed by a young woman emerging from her twin in the river. She enters with him, gaily. Later Ives is shot from ambush. The "river" girl comes to his aid. She is Marybelle Lund, sister of his newly made enemy, Cory Lund.

CHAPTER SIX

IVES got to the buggy and reached out for it, missing with his first try and then finding a handhold on the top supports. He got his foot on the step, and the girl pushed at him as he tried hoisting himself upward. He sprawled across the leather-covered seat and might have fallen out the far side, but he reached for a hold on the dashboard. He hoped Marco Stole's horse wasn't skittish and wouldn't decide to take off at this precise moment, but the horse hadn't run at Bruile's shot. He wanted nothing more than to sprawl out on the seat and go to sleep, but the seat was too narrow for that; he'd tried sleeping in a buggy in Oregon when night calls had taken him too far from his office.

The girl seemed to have vanished; he wanted to call out to her, to tell her to come back, but he didn't know her name. Then he heard her voice. She was tying color of Cory's eyes at the same time he became aware of Cory's gun. The youngster just didn't have the cut of the back-shooting breed.

He wanted to think this thing through, to reason out why his scalp had had a price on it; but the effort cost him pain, and he gave it up. He had become oblivious to the country through which they passed; he realized that it was mostly up and down, but he no longer looked for familiar landmarks. When he did try to force himself to alertness, he became confused. He would be equally sure that he remembered a certain rise, and he would be equally sure that the Pritchard place was in Oregon. He was slightly delirious and knew it; he would catch the girl looking at him queerly, and he would realize that he'd been babbling aloud and that she'd made no sense out of the words. Always he smiled then.

They came to a fork in the road.

The new mine contract expires on July 1, 1952, right in the middle of the presidential campaign and after the major parties have selected their candidates. Whatever happens in the coal industry at that time, Moses believes, may have an important effect on the outcome of the presidential elections.

Moses apparently figures that Lewis will be in a position to embarrass the Truman administration by a strike crisis or maneuver so that the Republican party can take credit for averting one.

That is, when a nation is seized by a revolutionary party which is part of a conquering imperialistic force, is it an indigenous act of revolution in a sovereign state or is it a phase of an imperialist movement?

The admission of Soviet China into the United Nations may set the standards for the world. It is establishable that since 1924, Russia has been operating in China both as a revolutionary force through Chinese Communists and as an imperialist power. But the case of the Philippines would be different, for that country had been a territorial part of the United States until by act of Congress the Philippines were given their independence under an American guarantee of sovereignty.

The United States cannot split hairs over the question as to whether the Huks are poverty-stricken revolutionaries fighting corruption or whether they are part of the Russian apparatus for world conquest.

Children's Reducing Program

By HERMAN N. SUNDESEN, M.D.

RELATIVELY little attention has been paid to the problem of the overweight child. Parents are inclined to believe either that nothing can be done about it or that Nature itself will correct the situation as the child grows older. This is true only in about one-third of the cases; others must rely on treatment if they are to lose their handicapping fat.

Like adults, children frequently overeat because of emotional factors. Thus, to be successful, any reducing program for the child must include an attempt to stabilize his emotional life. Moreover, since the first step in any reducing program is to gain the cooperation of the patient, both the child and his parents must be made to see the rewards that come from losing weight.

Long Period

Weight reduction in a child should be carried out gradually over a long period of time so that the chemical processes in the body will not be upset and no disturbance of the normal growth will occur. A weight loss of more than one or two pounds a week is not desirable.

Furthermore, with children, the amount of food cannot be suddenly reduced, but must be done gradually. A suggested method is to obtain a full list of the child's foods for a one-week period. Then, about 250 calories can be cut from the diet every three to five days until the diet supplies just the number of calories or heat units necessary to bring about slow weight loss.

Certain foods, such as bacon, ham and pork, goose, duck, and sausage, may have to be eliminated from the diet for the time being. The amount of butter and cream must be cut down, sweets limited, and such starchy foods as potatoes, noodles and corn, as well as beans, kept out of the diet. Saccharine may be used for sweetening in place of sugar.

It is important, in children, to use vitamin concentrates to make sure that all of the necessary vitamins will be obtained daily. Children require a daily intake of milk, but skim milk may be used in the place of whole milk. After the child has lost the necessary amount of weight, it is necessary to continue with some dietary regulation so that the excess weight will not be regained.

Of course, reducing in children should be carried out under the directions of a physician.

"And until you cut your price in half," answered the reindeer, "you never will again."

A biography of Chief Justice Simon P. Chase, who headed the Supreme Court in the crucial years from 1864 to 1872, reveals that he was as agile-tongued and irresistible in the drawing-room as he was on the bench. A few years after the Civil War ended, the Chief Justice was introduced to a flaming beauty from Alabama. "I must warn you," she told him archly, "that I am a rebel who has not been reconstructed." The gallant jurist promptly responded, "Madam, reconstruction in your case—even in the slightest degree—would be nothing short of sacrilege!"

SHADOW on the RANGE

by NORMAN A. FOX Copyright, 1949, by Norman A. Fox Distributed by King Features Syndicate

SYNOPSIS
Dr. Brian Ives returns to Tamarlane, frontier town of the Old West. Colonel Carradine, once his benefactor, needs him. Ives is ordered to "get out" by diabolical Cory Lund, but Marco Stole, an old acquaintance, intervenes. Warfare seems on the range. Still and Ives talk of the Colonel's stubborn, futile resistance to progress, to the "nester" farmers' invasion of the land, of the Colonel's beautiful unhappy daughter, Tana. Out on the trail, Ives discovers Brule, a desperado, crouched in the brush, cruelly suffering from snake bite. The doctor treats him and goes on his way. During the journey he is embarrassed by a young woman emerging from her swing in the river. She utters with him, gaily. Later, Ives is shot from ambush. The "river" girl comes to his aid. She is Marybelle Lund, sister of his newly made enemy, Cory Lund.

CHAPTER SIX
IVES got to the buggy and reached out for it, missing with his first try and then finding a handhold on the top supports. He got his foot on the step, and the girl pushed at him as he tried hoisting himself upward. He sprawled across the leather-covered seat and might have fallen out the far side, but he reached for a hold on the dashboard. He hoped Marco Stole's horse wasn't skittish and wouldn't decide to take off at his precise moment, but the horse hadn't run at Brule's shot. He wanted nothing more than to sprawl out on the seat and go to sleep, but the seat was too narrow for that; he'd tried sleeping in a buggy in Oregon when night calls had taken him too far from his office.

The girl seemed to have vanished; he wanted to call out to her, to tell her to come back, but he didn't know her name. Then he heard her voice. She was tying her saddle behind the buggy. She came back into his range of vision, tossing his hat into the buggy and climbing in and tugging at him again, forcing him to a sitting position.

He said, "I'm a nuisance." He began exploring his head with his fingers; blood matted his hair, and he deduced that the bullet had raked his scalp, not doing much more than breaking the skin and rendering him unconscious. He thought of Brule and was very angry; Brule had used the devil's own coin to pay his doctor bill. He wondered again if Brule were around but knew there was no use in looking, or in having the girl look. Brule would have used his gun again if he were still in the vicinity.

The girl hoisted the iron weight and set it upon the floorboards. She unwrapped the reins from around the whipstock, and said, "Where to?" "Hammer," he said. She turned her head, her eyes started again, her eyes a little afraid. She said, "Then you'd be Dr. Ives. I should have figured that out." He said, "You're one of those nesters, I guess. If you're afraid of Hammer, I'll make out alone." Her eyes became steel. "I'm not afraid of Hammer," she said. "Good for you!" he said, but it was lost in the clatter of wheels. She had clucked the horse into motion and they were off down the road.

He didn't try talking after that; wheels and hoofs made too much noise; he didn't feel up to the effort of shouting. He thought of trying to bandage his wound, but it had quit bleeding, and he didn't feel up to that effort, either. He watched the girl; she was a good driver; she kept her eyes on the road and her mind on the business, and he liked that. She might have plagued him with a thousand questions; she'd asked none. He appreciated that, too. He couldn't have given the answers, anyway. Brule shot me. Why? Because he was hired to. Who hired him? I don't know. I just don't know, miss. I haven't been on this range for ten years.

He remembered Cory Lund: the youngster had come to him with a warning and an implied threat, and there was a temper in Cory. But it was not temper but calculated scheming that put a man on a cut-bank for patient waiting with a gun. Cory Lund wouldn't have torn a hundred dollar bill in half. Cory would have done his own gun-work; and it pleased Ives to think that he would have seen the color of Cory's eyes at the same time he became aware of Cory's gun. The youngster just didn't have the cut of the back-shooting breed.

He wanted to think this thing through, to reason out why his scalp had had a price on it; but the effort cost him pain, and he gave it up. He had become oblivious to the country through which they passed; he realized that he was mostly up and down, but he no longer looked for familiar landmarks. When he did try to force himself to alertness, he became confused. He would be equally sure that he remembered a certain rise, and he would be equally sure that the Pritchard place lay just beyond it, and then he'd remember that the Pritchard place was in Oregon. He was slightly delirious and knew it; he would catch the girl looking at him queerly, and he would realize that he'd been babbling aloud and that she'd made no sense out of the words. Always he smiled then.

They came to a fork in the road.

This was a quiet day. Not a mother announced her daughter's engagement to Elliot.

And with 43 over there and the four boys here they could supply every state in the Union with a governor except Maine which wouldn't take one.

Speaking of governors, last we heard, Thurmond and Wright were still refusing that Southern fried crow that was dealt them in Washington.

But everybody got that Truman story wrong. He's not angry with the Southern Democrats; he just didn't want to put any more lunches on his expense account.

Housewives Can Stay Out Of Hot Kitchen Now, Still Have Plenty On The Table

Summer Meal Tips Given

Stay out of that hot kitchen and still have plenty on the table this Summer. That is the advice of Pickaway County home demonstration specialists along with their list of plentiful foods for the month of July.

Here's the vegetable list and it's full of ideas for Summer meals. Just plentiful vegetables will be snapbeans, beets, lettuce, tomatoes, carrots, onions, Irish potatoes, cabbage, and fresh corn.

So for hot day meals the table can boast carrot sticks or carrot salads, potato salad plus onions, cabbage slaw, tomato and lettuce salads.

For variation, the specialists suggest corn on the cob. It cooks in a very short time in the kitchen—or you can let the youngsters roast it over an open fire outdoors.

For dessert—it's watermelon. That's the only fruit the experts say will be generally plentiful in July.

Again in July, the Ohio Department of Agriculture says you can count on ample supplies of milk and milk products. That includes cheese—and there'll also be plenty of chicken.

Egg production is continuing heavy, and there'll be plenty of eggs for the July menu. Peanut butter, fish, and rice complete the Department's plentiful predictions for July.

But they add that here in the Midwest, many of the vegetables will be coming to market from local production areas. Then too, many families will be drawing supplies from their own backyard gardens.

Here's the vegetable list and it's full of ideas for summer meals. Just plentiful vegetables will be snapbeans, beets, lettuce, tomatoes, carrots, onions, Irish potatoes, cabbage, and fresh corn.

So for hot day meals the table can boast carrot sticks or carrot salads, potato salad plus onions, cabbage slaw, tomato and lettuce salads.

For variation, the specialists suggest corn on the cob. It cooks in a very short time in the kitchen—or you can let the youngsters roast it over an open fire outdoors.

For dessert—it's watermelon. That's the only fruit the experts say will be generally plentiful in July.

Again in July, the Ohio Department of Agriculture says you can count on ample supplies of milk and milk products. That includes cheese—and there'll also be plenty of chicken.

Egg production is continuing heavy, and there'll be plenty of eggs for the July menu. Peanut butter, fish, and rice complete the Department's plentiful predictions for July.

But they add that here in the Midwest, many of the vegetables will be coming to market from local production areas. Then too, many families will be drawing supplies from their own backyard gardens.

MARKET QUOTAS AHEAD?

County's Wheat Growers Keeping Eye On Capital

Eyes and ears of Pickaway County's wheat growers will be trained on Washington during the next few days. Big question is—Will the secretary of agriculture call for a farm vote on marketing quotas for the 1951 wheat crop?

It's a close decision.

Mervin G. Smith, extension economist at the Ohio State university, is reminding farmers that the way the law reads—if the actual supply of wheat is 20 percent above normal, the secretary must call for a vote. He also must announce this by July 1.

Just what is the supply and demand outlook?

Smith says that best estimates

1st 5 Months Of Year Good For Retailers

COLUMBUS, June 27—For the first five months of the year, total Ohio retail sales were up three percent over sales for the same period of 1949, according to the June issue of the Ohio Retail Annalist, published by the Bureau of Business Research at Ohio State university.

The state's total sales for last month were eight percent above those for May, 1949, and recent gains were more widespread, the Annalist reported.

In previous months, better-than-last-year business was confined to automobile dealers and other consumer durables lines.

In May, however, grocery stores, department stores, shoe stores, filling stations and hardware stores joined the durable goods retailers in increases over May of last year.

The bureau's seasonally adjusted index of Ohio retail sales stood at 254 percent of the 1935-1939 average at the end of May.

According to preliminary figures, 1950 retail sales to date in the largest Ohio cities ranged from a four percent increase over 1949 in Cleveland and Columbus to a four percent decline in Toledo.

City by city, the percentage comparisons for May, 1950, against May, 1949, and for the first five months in 1950 against 1949 were:

Akron, up 12 percent and no change; Canton, up eight percent and up one percent; Cincinnati, up four percent and up three percent; Cleveland, up 11 percent and up four percent; Columbus, up seven percent and up four percent; Dayton, down one percent and no change; Toledo, up six percent and down four percent; Youngstown, up 11 percent and no change.

at the moment show wheat will exceed normal supply by 20 to 25 percent.

It figures out like this. Actual supply will be about 1,395 million bushels. Of that supply, 945 million bushels will be this year's crop and 450 million bushels will be the carry-over as of July 1.

We'll need between 1100 and 1150 million bushels. Some 700 million bushels will be needed right here in the U. S. and 300 million more or less for export. Another 15 percent of that total is necessary for a safe carry-over.

So it looks like a photo-finish.

SMITH POINTS out that if the secretary calls for a vote on marketing quotas on the 1951 crop—voting will have to be finished within a month or so. It must be ahead of the sowing date for winter wheat.

Two thirds of the farmers voting would have to approve marketing quotas in order for them to be set up. If they approve, every farm would be given a quota of wheat for marketing. Anyone exceeding the quota would be penalized about half of the support price.

Should farmers vote against quotas—wheat prices would not need to be supported.

Complicating the whole picture is that this year's wheat crop was estimated as of June 1 to be 18 percent less than last year's crop and eight percent below the 10 year average.

But Smith says that farmers in the Southwest who are already harvesting wheat have reported slightly higher yields than expected.

There's still another question facing the secretary of agriculture of vital interest to Ohio farmers. Before July 15, the secretary must announce the national wheat acreage allotment for next year.

Smith says farmers do well to keep a close eye on developments the next few days to intelligently plan their farm business for next year.

The military bases treaty of 1946 provides that should the Philippines request it, there is to be military assistance and such is being supplied even at present. The question of American intervention has been discussed in the Philippines, and Myron Cowen, American ambassador to that country, has said:

"You may quote me as flatly rejecting the idea of United States intervention in this republic's internal affairs."

He also said:

"As has been indicated by Secretary Acheson, the United States is committed to defend this nation against external aggression. Further, as a part of my government's policy of assisting free Democratic states to defend themselves against internal subversion, the Philippine republic has received, and will continue to receive, supplies and equipment needed for enforcement of law and maintenance of order."

On the other hand, this question has been discussed in Tokyo; it is perhaps the prime question next to the future of Japan itself. For the Japan-Okinawa-Philippines front is the first line of defense for the United States in a war with Russia. As long as that war is even a possibility, however remote, that line will have to be held.

AFL Plans Drive Against Lausche

COLUMBUS, June 27—American Federation of Labor President William Green predicted today that labor would unite to insure the defeat of Ohio Democratic Governor Frank J. Lausche.

Green said Labor would be "as much against Lausche as they now are against Taft" because of the governor's statement in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., that he has not yet decided whom he will support in Ohio's senatorial contest.

Lausche commented dryly: "I suppose I'll get a lot of spankings. However, the reaction I've received is 10 to one in favor of my stand."

Idle Pay Claims Show Decline In This Area

New claims for unemployment compensation dropped slightly in Pickaway County last month.

A total of 55 new claims were filed in the local Bureau of Unemployment Compensation office, according to Mary Wolf, clerk. The month before the total was 59.

Miss Wolf said that a drop in continued claims has been noted throughout Spring. A total of 1,038 was filed in May, eight of these being under Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance Act. In April continued claims totaled 1,324.

"A weekly average of 224 claimants was noted in May, compared to 348 in April," she said.

The local BUC office was visited by 2,004 persons in May, while in April visitors numbered 2,430.

Last month the office made 42 job placements in local industry. Twelve of the jobs were agricultural.

C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, made eight employer visits, while Walter Spangler, farm placement representative, made 18 farm visits last month.

Sokolsky's These Days

The military bases treaty of 1946 provides that should the Philippines request it, there is to be military assistance and such is being supplied even at present. The question of American intervention has been discussed in the Philippines, and Myron Cowen, American ambassador to that country, has said:

"You may quote me as flatly rejecting the idea of United States intervention in this republic's internal affairs."

He also said: "As has been indicated by Secretary Acheson, the United States is committed to defend this nation against external aggression. Further, as a part of my government's policy of assisting free Democratic states to defend themselves against internal subversion, the Philippine republic has received, and will continue to receive, supplies and equipment needed for enforcement of law and maintenance of order."

On the other hand, this question has been discussed in Tokyo; it is perhaps the prime question next to the future of Japan itself. For the Japan-Okinawa-Philippines front is the first line of defense for the United States in a war with Russia. As long as that war is even a possibility, however remote, that line will have to be held.

AFL Plans Drive Against Lausche

COLUMBUS, June 27 — American Federation of Labor President William Green predicted today that labor would unite to insure the defeat of Ohio Democratic Governor Frank J. Lausche.

Green said Labor would be "as much against Lausche as they now are against Taft" because of the governor's statement in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., that he has not yet decided whom he will support in Ohio's senatorial contest.

Lausche commented dryly: "I suppose I'll get a lot of spankings. However, the reaction I've received is 10 to one in favor of my stand."

Idle Pay Claims Show Decline In This Area

New claims for unemployment compensation dropped slightly in Pickaway County last month. A total of 55 new claims were filed in the local Bureau of Unemployment Compensation office, according to Mary Wolf, clerk. The month before the total was 59.

Miss Wolf said that a drop in continued claims has been noted throughout Spring. A total of 1,038 was filed in May, eight of these being under Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance Act. In April continued claims totaled 1,324.

"A weekly average of 224 claimants was noted in May, compared to 348 in April," she said.

The local BUC office was visited by 2,004 persons in May, while in April visitors numbered 2,430.

Last month the office made 42 job placements in local industry. Twelve of the jobs were agricultural.

C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, made eight employer visits, while Walter Spangler, farm placement representative, made 18 farm visits last month.

'Bama Fugitive Quits Fight To Escape Prison

CLEVELAND, June 27 — The fight for freedom waged by a 28-year-old Alabama fugitive is over today.

Eugene R. Quillian, who spent 21 months in jail waiting and hoping to win a court decision which would keep him from being returned to an Alabama prison, decided to call it quits late yesterday.

"If I had known it was going to take this long and that I would have to stay in jail without any credit on my Alabama term, I would have gone back before," the downcast prisoner said.

Quillian and Robert Woodall, 31, have both been fighting extradition to the Alabama prison, where they said they were treated brutally before their escape.

Attorney Frank C. Lyons, who has been fighting their cause without pay, carried their pleas for freedom through Ohio courts and to the U. S. Supreme Court. Lyons lost out, but ten days ago he began a new attack in a Cleveland federal court.

The lawyer was very disappointed by Quillian's decision to give up the fight. Said Lyons: "These two cases are the first ones wherein we can go straight up the federal court procedure to the Supreme Court and get a decision. It's a moral issue to me. I spent over $300 of my own funds and Joseph Goldwasser, who also took an interest in them, has paid out more than $1,000 in court costs."

Woodall, the other fugitive who faces a 19-year term, said he would continue his court battle for freedom.

Army Takes Over Phone Circuit

TOKYO, June 27—U. S. Army authorities took over a commercial international telephone circuit for its own use between Tokyo and Seoul today because of a breakdown in its regular circuit to embattled Korea.

The Army gave the order for the commercial circuit about 6 a. m. (EST) and reserved the line full time for military calls.

The Army said it had lost contact with its own personnel in Korea because of the breakdown in the Army exchange and had been depending largely on Korean newspapermen in Tokyo for general information on the war.

Steelworkers Are Laid Off

LORAIN, June 27—Some 12,000 workers at the Lorain works of the National Tube Co. may be idled tomorrow as a result of a walkout of 300 railroad workers in their area.

Approximately 3,000 workers were laid off yesterday when 300 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen stopped work on the 41-mile lake terminal railroad in Lorain.

National Tube officials said that if the strike of railroad men is not settled promptly the number of unemployed at their plant would reach 12,000 by tomorrow.

Steelworkers Are Laid Off

LORAIN, June 27—Some 12,000 workers at the Lorain works of the National Tube Co. may be idled tomorrow as a result of a walkout of 300 railroad workers in their area.

Approximately 3,000 workers were laid off yesterday when 300 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen stopped work on the 41-mile lake terminal railroad in Lorain.

$3,500 TO THE WINNER

Williams, Harper Ready For Finals Of Lush PGA

COLUMBUS, June 27—Two rank-and-file members of the Professional Golf Association met for its championship here today, having adamantly voted out of office all the play-for-pay hierarchy.

It is Henry Williams Jr. of Secane, Pa., versus Chandler Harper, the beetle-browed Virginian, in the 36-hole final on the par-72, 7,032-yard Scioto Country Club course.

They got into the final—worth $3,500 to the winner, $1,500 to the loser—by opposing but equally effective methods yesterday.

Harper bedeviled Jimmy Demaret, second leading money winner among the touring pros, all the way and finally won a 2-and-1 victory.

Williams staged one of the most sensational comebacks in PGA history to defeat 1939 Champion Henry Picard, one up, on the 38th hole. He was six down with eight to play but came on to even the match and then to win it.

Midget Baseball Teams Planned For Playground

Midget baseball teams were being formed Tuesday in the Circleville Summer playground program in Ted Lewis Park.

Supervisor Dick West said he has enough boys on hand now for two or three teams, but that he needs extra players to round out a league.

Only requirements for becoming a member of one of the teams is that the youngster be not more than 14-years old.

Meanwhile, West reports that 145 youngsters, mostly boys, have joined the playground program to date.

The supervisor said that interest is high in all of the planned activities except tennis.

"The older boys and girls come out to play tennis," West said, "but the younger ones don't seem too interested."

Tuesday's schedule in the park called for baseball practice in the morning, with mixed games, model building classes and a horseshoe tournament in the afternoon.

Complete schedule of activities planned for the remainder of the week is:

Wednesday — Baseball, 9:30 a. m.; mixed games, 1 p. m.; leathercraft class, 2 p. m.; hopscotch tournament for girls of three age groups, 3 p. m.

Thursday — Baseball, 9:30 a. m.; free play period, 1 p. m.; model building, 2 p. m.; side-walk tennis singles tournament for boys and girls of two age groups.

Friday — Baseball, 9:30 a. m.; marbles tournament for boys of two age groups; leathercraft, 2 p. m.; sucker scramble, 3 p. m.

2 RECORDS IN OFFING

Moundsmen Rooting Hard For Rivals Jansen, Feller

NEW YORK, June 27 — Lean Larry Jansen, a pitcher by trade, has a chance tonight to become a man of distinction in the hurling fraternity.

Battered moundsmen throughout major league baseball will be rooting for the New York Giant righthander to save the honor of his position. For Jansen will be after his fourth straight shutout when he faces the Brooklyn Dodgers under the arcs in Ebbets Field.

The 29-year-old Giant ace has hurled 29 consecutive innings of scoreless ball. This commendable achievement assumes amazing qualities when it is considered alongside the fact that 112 homers have been walloped in the last 38 major league ball games.

Jansen can be the pitching rarity to enter the record books with the sluggers this season. Larry's fourth straight blanking would place him on a par in this department with Mordecai Brown, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Ed Reulbach and Bill Lee.

ANOTHER significant win will be sought by Cleveland's Robert Feller. The Indian righthander guns for his 200th major league triumph against the St. Louis Browns tonight.

The only scheduled game in the majors yesterday saw the Detroit Tigers raise their American League lead to three and a half games by defeating the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 4.

The Bengals came from behind with five runs in the eighth to gain the win. Charlie Keller's two-run triple was the big blow. The White Sox had jumped to a four-run lead in the first inning off Starter Hal White. Guz Zernial's eleventh homer with one mate aboard spearheaded the rally.

While no significant change appears imminent in the junior circuit, the National League lineup can be altered by what happens today and tonight.

The Dodgers have a half-game lead over the Phillies and a full game lead over the Cardinals. Philadelphia plays Boston in a night game with underfeared rookie righthander Bob Miller going after his seventh straight victory.

St. Louis has a doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs and the Cincinnati Reds meet the Pittsburgh Pirates under the lights. The American League card features all night games with Detroit meeting Chicago, New York against Washington, Cleveland against St. Louis and Boston against Philadelphia.

Ashville Reds Face Big Test In HOL Campaign

Ashville Reds baseball team will meet Chillicothe at 8:30 p. m. Thursday in Grove City to fight for the first round Heart of Ohio League championship.

Ashville scored its sixth win in seven starts this season last Sunday when it handed Ben Brews of Columbus a 4-3 loss.

The Reds proved victorious only in the final inning of the nip and tuck test. The score had been deadlocked at 3-3 after the fourth inning.

Ashville capitalized on only seven hits and three errors to take the Sunday skirmish, while Ben Brews suffered defeat by making only a trio of runs on 12 safeties and two bobbles.

The victory tied Ashville with the Chillicothe Meades in the loop. Chillicothe had led by a half game before Sunday's fracas.

Winning pitcher for Ashville was Bill Schmitter, coach of Scioto Township high school.

Line score of the playoff-advancer follows:

Brews ... 012 000 000—3 12 3
Reds ... 000 300 001—4 7 2

$3,500 TO THE WINNER

Williams, Harper Ready For Finals Of Lush PGA

COLUMBUS, June 27—Two rank-and-file members of the Professional Golf Association met for their championship here today, having adamantly voted out of office all the play-for-pay hierarchy.

It is Henry Williams Jr. of Secane, Pa., versus Chandler Harper, the beetle-browed Virginian, in the 36-hole final on the par-72, 7,032-yard Scioto Country Club course.

They got into the final—worth $3,500 to the winner, $1,500 to the loser—by opposing but equally effective methods yesterday.

Harper bedeviled Jimmy Demaret, second leading money winner among the touring pros, all the way and finally won a 2-and-1 victory.

Williams staged one of the most sensational comebacks in PGA history to defeat 1939 Champion Henry Picard, one, up on the 38th hole. He was six down with eight to play but came on to even the match and then to win it.

BOTH STAND to surpass all their previous rewards from golf, considering the untold commercial value of the PGA title. Ironically, Harper pocketed only slightly more than today's first prize in nine previous tournaments this year. Williams won only $192.

In a sense it was a triumph of youth over age, although Harper is 36 and Williams, 33. Harper defeated a 40-year-old gamecock in Demaret and Williams ousted a 43-year-old semi-retired family man in Picard.

It was an illuminating commentary upon a PGA rule that requires five years' apprenticeship for tournament competitors. It was an ironic commentary upon the unexpected impotency of such name stars as Sam Snead, Lloyd Mangrum and Demaret.

In fact, it was the first time since 1944 that one of golf's "name" pros has failed to win this big tournament. That year, Bob Hamilton cashed in on his first attempt.

After that it was Byron Nelson in 1945, Ben Hogan in 1946 and 1948, Jim Ferrier in 1947 and Snead last year.

Yet there was nothing cheap or left-handed about the appearance of Harper and Williams in the finals. Harper defeated Veterans Dick Metz and Mangrum, one of the favorites, as well as Demaret. Williams emerged from a tournament bracket that included Ferrier, Claude Harmon, Ex-Champ Paul Runyon, Dave Douglas and medal-play runner-up Al Broch in addition to Picard.

Demaret chased a will-o'-wisp in Harper. He never was ahead, although he came from behind three times to even the match.

HARPER WAS one up at lunch-time, dropped a ten-footer on the 33rd hole to go two up and then halved out the match. Picard, fresh from a 10-and-8 win over 1949 runnerup Johnny Palmer, was six up on Williams with only eight to go. But the 96-degree heat got him. He looked like a duffer the rest of the way and Williams rattled off a succession of pars and birdies to erase the apparently safe lead.

It ended with Picard flubbing a two-foot putt to lose on the second extra hole.

Annual Farm Safety Week Is Scheduled For July 23-29

President Sets Theme For Drive

Ruralites Urged To Obey Laws

Greater awareness and observance of farm safety rules to bring about a reduction of the accident toll among farm people are urged by President Truman in proclaiming the seventh observance of National Farm Safety Week, July 23-29, 1950.

The President's proclamation said, in part: "Experience has demonstrated the value of a concentrated effort to stress the importance of learning and conscientiously observing farm safety rules."

"I therefore earnestly request all organizations and individuals interested in farm life and the welfare of farm people to join in a continuing campaign to encourage the study and observance of farm safety rules during the designated week and throughout the year."

Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, in discussing plans for National Farm Safety Week, pointed out that farm safety is everybody's job. "Everyone in the United States," he said, "is affected directly or indirectly by accidents to farm people."

"WHEN PRESIDENT Truman set the 1950 goal," Dearborn said, "he chose an approach that should get real results. For most accidents to farm residents involve some violation of a common-sense safety rule."

"Safety rules are simple things, but probably each of us has known somebody in his own family, or among his friends, who was the victim of an accident because he had not learned or had not obeyed some standard safety rule. It is my hope that all farm residents will learn basic safety rules during National Farm Safety Week and put them into practice every day of the year."

Maynard H. Coe, director of the National Safety Council's farm division, said:

"National Farm Safety Week probably is the most important single factor in making farm residents more safety conscious the year-round. It has acquainted them with the serious accident problem among farm people, and has demonstrated that something can be done about it."

"If every American farm family will take advantage of the week's activities to attain President Truman's 1950 goal—if they will learn the common-sense safety rules of everyday living, and then put those rules into practice and obey them 52 weeks a year—I am sure we will make even greater gains against accidents."

100 Localities Hear Ollie James In Humor Talk

About 100 of Circleville's business and professional men Monday night ate heartily and laughed lustily in Pickaway Country Club.

The affair, a joint meeting of Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, was featured by an "address" by the "sage of Bullfrog Holler," the chief editorial writer for the Cincinnati Enquirer, Ollie James.

The dinner meeting, sponsored by Kiwanians, brought in the Rotarians as special guests.

Although, as James himself said, the speaker "shook the rafters with oratory," (backwoods Kaintucky style), there were no world-shattering pronouncements forthcoming.

However, as one silver-haired Rotarian put it: "There were guys at the meeting who I am sure belly-laughed for the first time in many years."

Unknown to nearly all present was the fact that the Cincinnati newspaperman should have remained in bed at home rather than making the trip to Circleville. Only a few days ago, he had been under the surgeon's knife for a chest disorder.

Civil Service Exam Unneeded For New Position

No civil service exam will be required if Circleville city council passes an upcoming bill to increase the police department.

Safety Director C. O. Leist said Tuesday there are still enough names on the eligibility list from which to select a new patrolman.

The bill to be introduced next meeting of the city fathers will be designed to increase the size of the police force from nine to 10 men, including the chief.

The bill will be designed to create another job in the police department—traffic officer.

An ordinance to increase the size of the force by one was tabled last meeting, when the legislators objected that their purpose would be defeated if they authorized the increase without being permitted to specify what duties the new man should perform.

After being told they could create a new job within the department, but could not specify who should fill it, the solons tabled the ordinance before them and ordered City Solicitor George Gerhardt to prepare new legislation creating the job of traffic officer.

Leist said there are three names left on the eligibility list provided by the last civil service exam.

Annual Farm Safety Week Is Scheduled For July 23-29

President Sets Theme For Drive

Ruralites Urged To Obey Laws

Greater awareness and observance of farm safety rules to bring about a reduction of the accident toll among farm people are urged by President Truman in proclaiming the seventh observance of National Farm Safety Week, July 23-29, 1950.

The President's proclamation said, in part: "Experience has demonstrated the value of a concentrated effort to stress the importance of learning and conscientiously observing farm safety rules."

"I therefore earnestly request all organizations and individuals interested in farm life and the welfare of farm people to join in a continuing campaign to encourage the study and observance of farm safety rules during the designated week and throughout the year."

Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, in discussing plans for National Farm Safety Week, pointed out that farm safety is everybody's job. "Everyone in the United States," he said, "is affected directly or indirectly by accidents to farm people."

"When President Truman set the 1950 goal," Dearborn said, "he chose an approach that should get real results. For most accidents to farm residents involve some violation of a common-sense safety rule."

"Safety rules are simple things, but probably each of us has known somebody in his own family, or among his friends, who was the victim of an accident because he had not learned or had not obeyed some standard safety rule. It is my hope that all farm residents will learn basic safety rules during National Farm Safety Week and put them into practice every day of the year."

Maynard H. Coe, director of the National Safety Council's farm division, said:

"National Farm Safety Week probably is the most important single factor in making farm residents more safety conscious the year-round. It has acquainted them with the serious accident problem among farm people, and has demonstrated that something can be done about it."

"If every American farm family will take advantage of the week's activities to attain President Truman's 1950 goal—if they will learn the common-sense safety rules of everyday living, and then put those rules into practice and obey them 52 weeks a year—I am sure we will make even greater gains against accidents."

100 Localities Hear Ollie James In Humor Talk

About 100 of Circleville's business and professional men Monday night ate heartily and laughed lustily in Pickaway County Club.

The affair, a joint meeting of Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, was featured by an "address" by the "sage of Bullfrog Holler," the chief editorial writer for the Cincinnati Enquirer, Ollie James.

The dinner meeting, sponsored by Kiwanians, brought in the Rotarians as special guests.

Although, as James himself said, the speaker "shook the rafters with oratory," (backwoods Kentucky style), there were no world-shattering pronouncements forthcoming.

However, as one silver-haired Rotarian put it: "There were guys at the meeting who I am sure belly-laughed for the first time in many years."
